PROPOSAL DEADLINE: JANUARY 15, 2021

INTRODUCTION:

There is a growing market demand for sustainable soy and for sustainable plant-based proteins/oils more broadly. The use of the U.S. Soy Sustainability Assurance Protocol (SSAP) Certificate is increasing and verified sustainable soy currently accounts for more than 36% of U.S. soybean exports. Sustainability is a market differentiator for U.S. soy and the sector's performance on measures of sustainability is already well-documented. However, at present, there is relatively limited data to allow for comparative analysis of soybean production practices across origins. Similarly, there is limited comparable data for other plant-based proteins/oils.

PURPOSE OF RFP:

USSEC seeks a research company contractor to: 1) assess the environmental impact of soybean production in the Southern Hemisphere and other origins as compared to U.S. soy; and 2) assess the environmental impact of other plant-based proteins/oils as compared to U.S. soy.

BACKGROUND & PURPOSE OF PROJECT:

Market demand for sustainable soy and plant-based protein/oils is increasing in response to growing consumer interest, companies' corporate sustainability strategies, and market regulations. U.S. Soy has a strong performance on sustainability measures and is well-positioned to supply customers interested in sustainable sourcing. In making purchasing decisions, buyers consider a number of factors including price. While the U.S. is competitive on price for a narrow window each year, customers interested in sustainable soy may be willing to pay a premium for U.S. soy if superior performance on sustainability measures is documented.

The contractor will collect data and produce a study on the environmental impact of competitive origin soy and other plant-based proteins/oil sources compared to U.S. Soy. The study will consider factors such as deforestation, grassland conversion, emissions/greenhouse gasses, land use, cultivation practices, soil quality and health (including organic matter) amongst others. The study may also compare conventional and organic soy. Applicants are welcome to propose additional factors for comparison. The study will include a side-by-side comparison of data.

Ultimately, the study will inform USSEC's communications around the comparative advantages of U.S. Soy as a sustainable product and the contributions of U.S. Soy to achievement of the UN Sustainable Development Goals.

TARGET AUDIENCE: The direct audience for the study is the USSEC Sustainability Team. USSEC will use the results of the study to develop communications messaging for customers and stakeholders.

SCOPE (SERVICES) OF WORK:

- Identify key metrics to compare with soybeans from other origins and/or other sources of plant-based proteins/oils.
- Develop and implement a plan for collection of quantitative and qualitative data. At a minimum, data will include measures related to deforestation, grassland conversion, emissions/greenhouse gasses, land use, cultivation practices, soil quality and health. Applicants are welcome to suggest additional factors for comparison. Soybean origins will include: Southern Hemisphere, European Union, India, Ukraine, Russia, and Canada. Other sources of proteins/oils could include European rapeseed, sun seed, palm, insect meal, pea protein, and grass. The contractor will submit the data collected to USSEC.
- Produce a study that includes:
 - Analysis of the environmental impact of soybean production in the origins listed above.
 - Analysis of the environmental impact of the other sources of plant-based proteins/oils listed above.
 - Comparative analysis of the data, identifying aspects of sustainability where U.S. Soy demonstrates superior, average, or below average performance as compared to other soybean origins and/or other sources of plant-based proteins/oils.
 - A high-level summary that is designed to communicate the results to a non-technical audience.

ADDITIONAL CONSIDERATIONS

- This study will require original data collection in other origin countries. Applicants should demonstrate the capacity to conduct such data collection.

- All work must be completed by June 30, 2021. Other dates listed in the deliverables section below are illustrative, and applicants may propose adjustments to the deliverables schedule, if doing so will result in a higher quality product.

SUPPLEMENTAL INFORMATION AND BACKGROUND

BUILDING A PREFERENCE FOR U.S. SOY

USSEC's strategy can be found here: <http://ussec.org/about-ussec/vision-mission/>
USB's Long Range Strategic Plan can be found here: <http://unitedsoybean.org/about-usb/strategic-planning/>

We are a dynamic partnership of key stakeholders representing soybean producers, commodity shippers, merchandisers, allied agribusiness and agricultural organizations.

Through a global network of international offices and strong support in the U.S., we help build a preference for U.S. soybeans and soybean products, advocate for the use of soy in feed, aquaculture and human consumption, promote the benefits of soy use through education and connect industry leaders through a robust membership program.

Our 15-member board of directors is comprised of four members from the American Soybean Association (ASA), four members from the United Soybean Board (USB), and seven members representing trade, allied industry, and state organizations.

New board members are seated annually. We are receiving funding from a variety of sources including soy producer checkoff dollars invested by the USB and various state soybean councils; cooperating industry; and the American Soybean Association's investment of cost-share funding provided by the United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Foreign Agriculture Service.

The United Soybean Board, created by the 1990 Farm Bill to manage and direct the National Soybean Checkoff, is dedicated to marketing and research for the soybean industry. USB is comprised of 73 volunteer soybean farmers representing the interests of fellow growers nationwide. Each board member is nominated by Qualified State Soybean Boards (QSSBs) and appointed by the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture.

Because of the limitations on administrative and salary costs established in the Act, USB outsources the majority of its program management responsibilities to USB's three primary contractors:

- SmithBucklin-St. Louis for domestic marketing, new uses, production research and Board initiative activities;
- Osborn & Barr Communications for communications/public relations activities and;
- U.S. Soybean Export Council (USSEC), Inc. for international marketing and global opportunities activities.

As one of these three primary contractors USSEC may also undertake initiative activities on behalf of USB. USB considers primary contractor staff (approximately 60 people) as core USB staff. These three primary contractors use a number of subcontractors and, together, these entities carry out approximately 450 projects each year for USB. USB also manages approximately 10 subcontractors.
